The Game of Ludo

This game appeared in England in 1896 and was a simplified version of the traditional Indian game of Pachisi.

To use the board

You can print out this game on card or print it on paper and then glue it to a piece of card or board. If you want to save it from wear, you can protect it with a light coat of acrylic varnish. If you would like to give the board an appearance of age, you can paint it with a light wash of cold tea or coffee, to stain it before you varnish. Another method is to add a small amount of the acrylic colour "raw sienna" to the varnish itself.

Cutting out the Pieces

Please take care cutting out the pieces. For safety sake, children should only be allowed to do this under adult supervision.

The Rules

Each player spins the wheel in turn, and the first to get six starts. Afterwards the player travels as many spaces as the wheel shows. If you land on the same square as another player, that player has to return their counter back to their base. The player who gets all four of their counters home first, wins.

Traditional Games

LUDO

Cut out the coloured discs and the numbered wheel through which you fix a pointed match stick as shown. Each player spins the wheel in turn, and the first to get six starts. Afterwards he travels as many spaces as the wheel shows. If he meets the disc of another player, this one has to return to his base. The player who gets all his four men home first wins.
